

Worrying about money is what adults do. That's why we...

Published: January 13, 2026, 1:42 am

My reflections on money reached the pages of The National in Scotland today:

N The National @ScotNational · 12m
'It struck me that the most important thing that almost anyone needs to know about money is that we all worry about it'

@RichardJMurphy considers the currency question in a different way

thenational.scot
Richard Murphy: The way to win independence? Removing people's worries over money

I am not a regular Sunday columnist there, but the editor rang me yesterday afternoon when she realised she was a column short for the paper due to problems that had arisen. An hour later I had filled the blank space in this morning's paper. When necessary, I can be a word machine.

My basic thesis is that being an adult means you worry about money. What we need to do is reduce that stress. Hence, my discussions on this site on money education.

The article is here.