

Funding the Future

In The Mirror

Published: January 13, 2026, 4:58 pm

I have an article in The Mirror this morning based on my Twitter thread posted here yesterday:

The image is a screenshot of a news article from The Mirror. The header features the word 'Mirror' in white on a red background. Below the header is a photograph of a water pipe on a beach, with water leaking out and flowing into the sand. The caption under the photo reads: 'Water companies are polluting our beaches' (Image: Adam Gerrard / Daily Mirror)'. Below the photo is a navigation bar with categories: NEWS, POLITICS, FOOTBALL, CELEBS, TV, ROYALS, and MONEY. The main headline is 'The only answer to the greed of water company fatcats is nationalisation'. A subtext below the headline states: 'No wonder the water industry is in trouble - the public is being fleeced by these companies who are simply treating the system as a means to extract profit from them'. At the bottom, there is a 'OPINION' section by Richard Murphy, Professor of Accounting Practice at Sheffield University, dated 22:28, 29 Jun 2023.

The message is getting out about environmental insolvency.