The Times has reported today that:

Almost 11,000 people in England were hospitalised with malnutrition last year, as doctors warned that the cost of living crisis has also led to a rise in “Victorian” illnesses such as scurvy and rickets.

Provisional data newly obtained by The Times Health Commission under freedom of information laws reveal that cases of malnutrition have more than doubled in a decade and have quadrupled since 2007/8.

From 2022 to April 2023, 10,896 NHS patients — including 312 children — were hospitalised with the condition in England.

This is what Tory austerity has done.

But, apparently, it was very nasty of someone to protest at George Osborne's wedding at the weekend.

I beg to disagree.

Worse though, Rachel Reeves is no doubt already saying that there is nothing that can be done about this - because there is no money left.
