

Funding the Future

Article URL

<https://www.taxresearch.org.uk/Blog/2023/09/14/21-distractions/>

Published: January 12, 2026, 6:30 pm

---

If I have done a little less blogging than usual this morning, there has been a good reason.

Because my younger son was ill during some of his mid-final year exams in January this year he had to sit those he missed in August. As a consequence, he did not get his degree result until this morning.

I am pleased to say that I am now not the only person in my household to have a 2:1 degree, part of which is in accounting. Thomas' degree is in accounting and finance from Aberystwyth, which proved to be a great place to study.

He and I are happy chaps this morning. He's also relieved, and I am very proud of him.

The worry is, he's now thinking of becoming an accountant.

Moderation might be slow today, and potentially non-existent this evening.