Covid has probably done its worst now. I feel marginally better this morning than I have the last few days.

Like my previous experiences, this has not been fun. Most of what is left as the holiday period draws to a close is a feeling of total fatigue, which is not good. So, please forgive me if I take the last days of the year off posting here (always subject to the caveat that I might change my mind). I think I need to do so to be ready for 2024.
