

Questions for Rachel Reeves

A regular commentator on the blog, whose identity is known to me, has posted this in the comments section:

Next week, I'm representing my firm at a working dinner with Reeves and her PPS Strathern. The occasion is for foreign firms operating in the City to hear what Labour proposes and makes their case.

Labour is already working with the big UK and US banks, in tandem with the Blair Foundation, and liaises regularly with UK Finance.

I'm happy to relay questions and send a read-out.

Suggestions are welcome. Please make them serious ones that might be raised on such an occasion.
