If you can access X or Twitter, as most of us still think of it, then this is worth watching.

Green Party peer Jenny Jones takes apart this government's track record and useless recent budget in a quietly passionate speech that contrasts with the normal hyperbole that we have to endure.

I don't quite agree with her on wealth taxes, as should be known by now. I would instead tax income from wealth and gains more. But this is a point of detail. It is being said that other options are available. And that is vital.
