

Quieter time

I promised myself a thinking week, but my posts yesterday generated well over 100 comments, one or two of which implied irritation at my delay in getting to them. That was because I was doing other things.

I have shared some thoughts and have appreciated the feedback this week but might post less over the next few days to allow more time for the task in hand.

Meanwhile if I do take time to moderate comments please do understand that this blog really is a very long way from being all that I do and that other things sometimes have priority. I can multitask, but there are limits to my ability to do so.
