

Today might be polling day for you. Please vote.

There are elections in 107 local authorities across England today, as well as 11 mayoral races.

A by-election will elect a new Blackpool South MP, following the resignation of former Conservative, Scott Benton.

And voters across England and Wales will elect 37 police and crime commissioners (PCCs).

There are no elections in Scotland or Northern Ireland.

If you do have the chance to vote today, please do. This is a massively important election for shaping the general election to come.

And remember to take relevant ID or you will be turned away, however ridiculous that is given there is almost no evidence of there ever having been electoral frauds at UK polling stations.
