This is my short video for this morning, in which I ask if our major political parties trying to push us over the climate change precipice?

You can see the video here.

The transcript is:

You don't have to be green in this election campaign.

It is voluntary. For the parties, for you, and everyone else.

But frankly, the choice is, well, a dire one.

You can be green, and the world might survive. Or you can not be green, and I can guarantee you it won't.

All the leading climate scientists say that we are sitting on the edge of a precipice.

Five years or so, and then we're at a tipping point. A tipping point where we have no idea what the consequences of inaction will be.

And yet we are facing the fact that all our major parties are refusing to commit to any serious programmes to tackle the consequences of climate change at this election.

Are they really trying to push us over the edge? Quite literally.
