In a land not that far from here, which many people in this country have visited, there is a genocide going on.

Millions of people have been forcibly displaced from their homes.

Many innocent victims have been killed by an invading force acting contrary to international law.

A place with the highest rate of child amputees in the world has been created in a matter of months.

People are dying of starvation.

All the major hospitals and universities have been destroyed.

Schools have been bombed.

All of this will continue today.

And there has not been a word said about this that I can recall during the course of this election campaign.

Why is that?

How is that?

Do we not care?

Have we turned a blind eye?

Well we continue to turn a blind eye?

Why will no-one talk about this deliberate human-made humanitarian crisis?

I wish I knew the answers to those questions.

Which politician will supply them?
