

Funding the Future

What is Labour for?

Published: January 13, 2026, 11:13 am

I posted this on Twitter this morning:

 Richard Murphy  @RichardJMurphy · 20m ...
How to fuel inflation, poverty and increasing inequality in one go, and all to preserve the massive profits of energy companies. What is @UKLabour for if it can't address this?

The meter screen shows the following data:
11:53
£61.72 (Total)
£148 (So far this month)
£0.09/hr (Cost per kWh)
A small house icon is also visible.
A blue banner at the bottom of the image reads: "Winter energy bills could rise to average of £1,714 a year in Great Britain" with the "The" and "ian" parts of "Guardian" in white.

From theguardian.com

2 22 48 3K

I wish I could answer that question positively, but I cannot.