

Starmer's dubious choice

<https://www.taxresearch.org.uk/Blog/2024/12/13/starmers-dubious-choice/>

Published: January 12, 2026, 8:28 pm

---

Yesterday was another day when my energy levels were pretty low, and today is not much better.

As a result, trivia caught my attention, including this in the Guardian:

The Tory leader later attacked Starmer for saying that he might watch Love Actually over Christmas, adding that she prefers watching Die Hard over the festive period.

I have never watched Die Hard, and I very much doubt I want to change that fact. The title is enough to put me off.

But Starmer's choice is almost as worrying. Ignore for a moment the many criticisms of that film now made. Just, instead, imagine why he might want to watch it. Surely, he does not fancy himself dancing around Downing Street, Hugh Grant style? Please tell me that is not the case.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=zcgxBHBsl-4?si=v4497gKmfmoCGHff>