

Funding the Future

With apologies

There is no video, again, this morning.

But we are planning to meet to organise a resumption of recording once the impact of the plague that has hit my household has passed.

This does include production of a series that will spread across Christmas and New Year, health permitting. Based on prior years, there is evidence of a very strong appetite for blog material over this period, and so we presume this might be relevant for videos as well.
