

What would you like me to make videos about?

Published: January 13, 2026, 1:50 am

The reason why I thought of asking on this blog whether more polls might be popular is because the response to those we have put on YouTube has been both interesting and high.

I am aware that the audience on this blog has different priorities and interests from the people watching the YouTube videos we make (and most people who come here seem to read the transcripts and not watch the videos), but I thought that for precisely that reason the most recent poll that I put on YouTube might be worth replicating here to see if there is a different outcome:

[poll id="133"]

What I would add is that the preferences identified on that YouTube poll are, so far, not a good reflection of the topics that are the most popular on the channel. Market research is not always reliable, but I do think it is helpful nonetheless.