Whose defence is it?

I took part in a discussion on defence spending during the Nicky Campbell Show on BBC Radio 5 this morning, and contrary to most of my media experience of late, this went really well.

Nicky gave me the chance to develop an idea, and Anthony (Tony) King of Exeter University the chance to respond. The three callers all added value. One was well-versed in modern monetary theory, but all were good, and then Tony and I were allowed to conclude. The Taxing Wealth Report 2024 also got a good plug.

For once, I can recommend this: I enjoyed it, and the producer was effusive afterwards.

There will be more on this tomorrow.
