This is the transcript:

If you want to have a laugh right now, and there aren't many to be had in the world at this moment, then have a look at Tesla's share price.

Tesla is of course, owned by Elon Musk.

Last December, soon after Donald Trump was elected, but before he got into office, the share price of Tesla had reached $480.

Now it's $240.

Musk's time in the US government has halved the value of Tesla and therefore massively harmed Musk's own wealth.

Why is that? Because people have seen how bad Musk is at management.

People have seen how he's trying to destroy the USA by destroying its government.

They hate his cars as a result.

They're not buying them as a consequence, not just in the USA, but around the world.

This is now a toxic brand.

The days of Tesla are over, and the only way they'll get back into any right shape is by getting rid of Musk.

The same as the only way that the USA will ever get back into right shape is by getting rid of Musk.

That share price is going down, down, down, down, down, and there's nowhere else for it to go.
