Wes Streeting is only interested in money

I liked this post on Twitter this morning:

Wes Streeting said he's responsible for long ambulance waits and the lack of GP appointments.

What he failed to mention is that he is also responsible for 20,000 NHS doctors potentially being out of a speciality training job this August and being unable to become consultants/GPs.

This is because training posts are being centrally restricted by the government. @wesstreeting says he wants to increase efficiency, yet we have UK doctors out of work. This is a waste of taxpayers money.

Why is the government not addressing this?

The point made is wholly appropriate.

Streeting wants to cut spending very much more than he wants to employ doctors to meet healthcare demand.

To describe him as a small-minded charlatan is to be kind.
