That screenshot was taken at just after seven this morning.

This is also interesting:

And for those who say that looking at such data is simply for the sake of a dopamine hit (which it does, of course, provide), I'd suggest they think again.

I oppose Trump and all he stands for.

I loathe the far-right billionaire view of the world that treats the vast majority of people in the world as expendable means to achieve their ends.

If making videos is a way to challenge what they are doing, that is what I will do. Of course, it's pleasing in that case if they find an audience.

This is the way to fight back. And more than that, this is the way to help build change.

So to all those who have watched, I say thank you.
