

Reflecting

Published: January 12, 2026, 11:14 pm

It has, for all sorts of reasons, been one heck of a week.

I am not complaining. There are a great many things about the way in which I now work that I enjoy, even if I do not seem to have significantly reduced my working hours since my technical retirement.

That said, I might need a little downtime over the weekend. I think I might need a moment where I don't look at the computer quite as often as I do during the week, and if moderation takes a little longer than usual, I apologise.

Likewise, if there are fewer posts than usual today, that's because I am boosting the batteries by reflecting rather than writing. Sometimes it has to be done.