I keep saying the US stock market, and quite possibly its economy, will crash, and this chart explains why.

This was published by Adam Tooze in his newsletter yesterday:

Global Investors Plowed $163 Billion Into The US Stock Market In June

If you want an indication of stock market volatility, that is it.

Wow, is all I can say. This is beyond hype and bubble territory: this is economic insanity driven by loose money pursuing profit unrelated to any real-world activity.

Does that create the potential for the bubble to burst? You bet it does.
