

There is much to do

Yesterday's poll on Farage here was interesting. This is the result so far:

Despite the bias likely to be present in the readership of this blog, 89% of you seem to think Farage has the capacity to win an election in the UK.

It would seem, therefore, that you believe that his total bullshit (there is no other term for it) is potentially capable of conning sufficient people into supporting his programme of what will inevitably amount to exploitation, because that is what fascists always deliver.

There is, then, much to do.

What else can I say?
