Good morning, world! What happens when soldiers stop focusing on outside threats, and turn inward, to police people at home? For me as a German, that is not an abstract concept — it's history. This morning, my colleague Helene Cooper writes about President Trump's plans to deploy the military to American cities in a "war from within."

Sometimes details do not need to be spelt out, but are there for all to read into what is said.

This is one such occasion.
