

Funding the Future

Ne'er a truer word

Published: January 13, 2026, 4:33 am

I know some dream of a stairway to heaven. I'd rather have this:

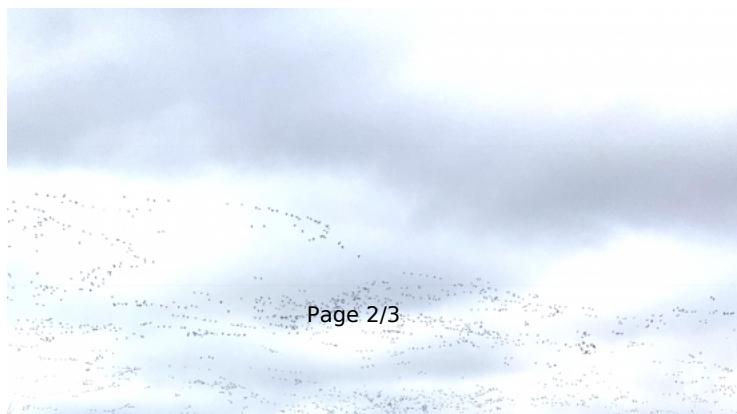

That's the boardwalk on the way to the hides at Cley bird reserve, yesterday.

This was looking from Blakeney towards Cley yesterday. There were curlews all around as I took that one.

And I will not acknowledge that this is not a great photo, but I was caught off guard by several thousand pink-footed geese. This was by no means all of them:

And then, before setting out for an early coffee this morning, the view of Blakeney harbour:

The sign in the water warns that the car park may flood. Ne'er a truer word was put in the public domain.