There is a new feature on this site this morning. We now have what I am calling a PDF shop. It is also called Downloads in the main menu, and it looks like this:

Funding the Future Richard Murphy on developing a fairer and sustainable economy
Formerly Tax Research UK

Downloads
PDF shop
Please tick the reports you wish to download

The aim is to provide a location where publications based on work developed in or as a result of this site will be available as PDF downloads.

The range is somewhat limited now, but will grow over time.

Click what you want, fill in some details, and download. They are free, but you will be asked whether you want to donate. I stress, though, you don't have to do so.

You will, however, be added to our mailing list, which means you will receive the daily summary of posts made here each evening. So far, we have never used it for anything else. If you don't want that, you can unsubscribe.

This page will become the obvious destination for output here. The economic questions, myths, quantum essays and other series might all end up here. The first publication is, in fact, planned for this weekend.

The aim is quite simple: there is a need for change. This is another way to help explain what change is required.
