I loved this juxtaposition of two headlines in an FT newsletter last night:

UK orders review of foreign interference in British politics

Inquiry to examine political funding rules, including use of cryptocurrencies, after former Welsh Reform leader was jailed for bribery

Why is Donald Trump suing the BBC — and will he win?

US president's $10bn lawsuit over 'Panorama' documentary is branded 'extravagant' but adds to pressure on UK broadcaster

Does that mean the UK is about to investigate Trump's interference in UK politics?

I think not, somehow, even though that might be where the most significant problem now is.
