

Funding the Future

Someone's got to get muddy

Published: February 13, 2026, 7:33 am

What's the problem with British politics? The public seems to know, based on the opinion polling reflect

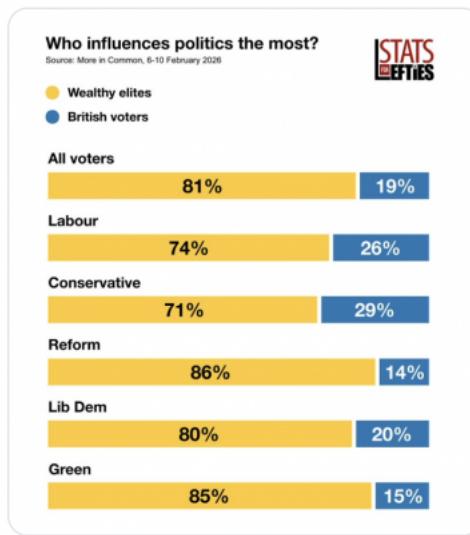

Stats for Lefties 🇬🇧 🇫🇷 @LeftieStats · 19h
 POLL | Who influences politics the most?

">$ Wealthy elites: 81%
🗳️ British voters: 19%

Poll: @Moreincommon_, 6-10 Feb

49

225

1.2K

41K

41K

What is the answer? This was polling on YouTube on our video, yesterday:

Richard J Murphy 1 day ago

How should the UK now be governed?

6.3k votes

⋮

Stay with first-past-the-post and single-party majority government 7%

Do electoral reform to increase political cooperation 60%

Form a national unity government now to beat fascism 16%

The system cannot be fixed 17%

474

260

People want to be put back in charge.

So why don't politicians want that? Could it be they like dipping their snouts into the trough of privilege?

The trouble is, once you have, you behave like a pig, and as a wise person once told me, don't argue with a pig. You'll get very dirty, and the pig will enjoy it.

So, why do I keep engaging with the failings of politicians? I guess someone's got to get muddy....