

Today

Please do forgive me if moderation is very slow today.

We have our first live Funding the Future event in Cambridge, and from about 9.30 this morning until well into this evening, I expect to be almost entirely distracted by that, and will not be able to moderate many, if any, comments that we get on here during that period. I know that this might be frustrating, but whilst I really do try to be as productive as I can be, I cannot both talk to people - as I'm going to be doing all day - and moderate at the same time, unless I am going to be really rude, and that is not my plan.

With luck, and presuming I am not too tired by the day's experience (and I expect this is going to be draining), I will try to deal with comments tonight. If not, it may be tomorrow morning.
