In case you had not noticed, this is a New York Times headline this morning:

U.S. Opens Military Action in Ecuador Against ‘Terrorist Organizations’

The joint activity with Ecuador appeared to be a major expansion of U.S. strikes against boats that the Trump administration has accused of carrying drugs.

Trump promised the MAGA that he would not engage in foreign wars. But, as Napoleon once noted:

When a leader thinks that his people are going to revolt, he needs to go to war with another country.

Trump must be expecting a serious revolt. One war is not enough for him.
