

We can't run out of emails

I loved this reaction by Tom Butcher to my video transcript on the MMT economy. He said in a comment:

It strikes me that no-one spends any time worrying that they will run out of emails. I just type it in. The only concern is how much to write on what subject and where to send it for best effect. Same with Govt money. Just type it in. How much to create for which purpose and where to send it for best effect; .. ah, there's the rub!

That's it, in a nutshell. The issue is deciding what matters. That's where our politicians lack ability.
