

Thank you

After what might fairly be described as a weekend of agony, the NHS did its best for me yesterday.

This morning plans will be confirmed, but it may be I will have had the necessary treatment before the day is over.

However, that does not mean I will be back in action on Wednesday. I will be heeding advice to take things slowly for a little while after this, even if today is the immediate end of treatment, as I hope.

And very many thanks for all your messages. Tom, Jacqueline and I appreciate them.
