I have this press release to share on the final release of the Finance Curse film, which has been on its way for some time and which is now finally going to arrive:

At 19.00 on 12 November The Finance Curse documentary will have it's launch screening in London at The Frontline Club. This documentary traces how the finance sector and far-right billionaires are funding right wing think tanks to fuel financialization and capture our democracies - and how our movement is fighting back. This the link to buy tickets (note, with the q&a and open discussion in the bar after it's likely to run to about 21:30) <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/2003610952294?aff=oddtcreator> We can also secure free screenings for any ngos/political groups or policy teams - and online links for members and staffers who might want to watch from home. If that's of interest, please do fwd this to any relevant contacts and fill out this form: <https://forms.gle/1oCqCFtcPj8f9iWa9>

John Christensen will be attending the screenings. If anyone wishes to organise one within a reasonable distance of Ely, I will see if I can also attend to do a Q&A, either alone or with John.
